

METALGATE

MetalGate Season Enclosure 2010 has clearer outlines.

The first October weekend, specifically Saturday 2.10.2010, will belong to the second installment of MetalGate Season Enclosure, an event which, identically to the first installment, will conclude the series of core events of MetalGate in 2010, which began in May with MetalGate Spring Prelude and culminated with MetalGate OpenAir 2010.

And what can you look forward to in October? First of all, on a new headliner manifested as the Greek dark mystics Septicflesh that replaced Rotting Christ, whose participation was hindered by an unfortunate injury of the vocalist Sakis in a car accident, on the lead position of the event lineup. Septicflesh will be concluding in October the production of its new album, of the successor of the highly acclaimed "Communion" album, during which the band will take a short break to come to Prague and perform on MetalGate Season Enclosure 2010. That in itself promises a most interesting musical experience.

The rest of the lineup will also be worth seeing, which will be assured mostly by representatives of the Czech metal scene. First and foremost, we shall be joined by Silent Stream of Godless Elegy from Ostrava, which will introduce as part of its tour in Fall the newest album of this ethno-doom metal band. On this tour, SSOGE will be supported by colleagues of crossover-metal band Endless, which you can also look forward to.

The band roster shall be completed firstly by Public Relations from Ostrava, presenting its experimental dominant artcore, and secondly by a representative of the Slovak metal scene, the band Corrupted Melody.

This appealing metal evening shall commence at 18:00 at Prostor Abaton in Prague Holešovice. Tickets are available for 330 CZK on site, or for 270 CZK at presale at the Ticketstream presale network.
